A LESSON IN SIMPLICITY:
MODERN RETREADING PROCESS

1. Step 1: Initial Inspection
   - Visual inspection to ensure the casing is in good condition and not damaged.
   - Use a flashlight to look inside the casing for any damage.

2. Step 2: Electronic Inspection
   - Use a specialized tool to check for any potential defects that are not visible to the naked eye.
   - Inspect the casing for any signs of wear or damage.

3. Step 3: Shearography
   - Use a shearography tool to detect any hidden damage inside the casing.
   - This tool uses a special dye to highlight any cracks or flaws.

4. Step 4: Refining
   - Remove any wear patterns or defects found during previous inspections.
   - Ensure the casing is ready for retreading.

5. Step 5: Repair
   - Use special tools to repair any damaged areas found during the inspection process.
   - Make sure the casing is ready for the next stage of retreading.

6. Step 6: Refinishing
   - Apply a coating to the casing to protect it and improve its performance.
   - Ensure the casing is ready for use.

Face a new tread.
This up the roundness and prepares the sun.
The process removes the worn tread surface.
The casing is returned to its operational shape.

BANDAG RETREADING PROCESS
Step 1: Final Inspection

A visual hands-on inspection is repeated to ensure all quality specifications are met.

Step 2: Enveloping

A new tread is automatically applied with a suitable grade.

Step 3: Cutting

The casing is ready for a new tread.

Step 4: Building

Precisely centered on the casing, the tire must be straight and perfectly centered.

Step 5: Applying Cushion

An uncured bonding layer is extruded onto the prepared casing surface and all skives are filed.

The curing chamber causes the bonding layer to cure and permanently adhere to the new tread.

Give a tour of the Bandag Refeed Plant. Show the reprocessing from beginning to end, which includes replacing a damaged casing and applying tread.
