

What is Affordable Housing?

For housing to be considered “affordable,” a renter or homeowner pays no more than one-third of their income for their housing costs. So what’s affordable for you depends on your income.

How does the City provide housing?

*The City does NOT provide housing directly.
Rather, we partner with local, nonprofit organizations who provide the services. See the reverse side of this brochure for a full description of these services.*

What is the Santa Fe Homes Program?

The City's inclusionary zoning program requires that in any new development, 20% of homeownership units and 15% of rental units are set aside for income-qualified buyers and renters.

How does the City fund housing activities?

The City manages a Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) which is HUD money used to support housing and community development. Other funds include the affordable housing trust fund, Capital Improvement Program (CIP) funds and Shelter Plus Care/HUD funds.

How do I qualify for assistance with affordable housing?

Contact our partners listed on the reverse side of this brochure for rental assistance or help buying or maintaining a home.
