SCOPE OF SERVICES

20/30/P

The City water resources and conservation group annually conducts a non-revenue water audit to identify and quantify water losses. The contractor shall conduct a water audit for the City to determine the percentages and volumes of revenue and non-revenue water in the system. The audit will be completed using the water accounting methods established by the American Water Works Association (AWWA). The water audit shall quantify the amount and sources for primary water loss and make recommendations for reducing such loss.

An annual water audit shall be conducted for calendar years 2019, 2020, 2021, 2022, 2023. The scope includes gathering information on water use, determining flows into and out of the distribution system based on estimates and metering, calculating the performance indicators, assessing where water losses appear to be occurring based on available metering and estimates, establishing where there are data gaps, and proposing appropriate water loss interventions including anticipated impacts of these interventions.

The following tasks are required for the completed water audit report:

- Collect System Data: Work with Public Utility Department staff to compile data about water production levels, treated water production, water distribution through sub-metering, water exported, and customer meter data.
- Develop a Water Budget: Use system data to complete a water budget per American Water Works (AWWA) non-revenue water audit format including apparent losses, real losses, authorized consumption, and exported water.
- Detailed Evaluation of Exported Water: The City of Santa Fe exports water to the Santa Fe County water system at several points in the City system. A detailed evaluation of these connections and the adequacy of existing metering should consider accounting methods under different operational scenarios to determine the accuracy of the Billed Water Exported portion of the AWWA audit.
- Data Validity Evaluation: Data validity is a measure of the accuracy of the audit based on the quality and comprehensiveness of the data used to conduct the audit. The ranking of validity of the data provided by the City and the range of operational and financial performance indicators as calculated from the input data need to be evaluated and the findings presented in detail. This evaluation shall include review of existing meter age, testing methods & frequency, and effectiveness of application in terms of meter type and location.
- Study Report: Complete a project report that presents descriptions of the water system, data, assumptions used, methods used, calculations made, data limitations, recommended steps to reduce water loss, recommended steps to improve data validity, and discussion of the AWWA water audit methodology. Report format should be consistent with the AWWA water audit report from 2018.

- Presentation: Appear before the Water Conservation Committee and before water division staff to present the findings of the water audit in summary and answer questions.
- Evaluation of Non-Consumed Water (WWTP Returns): Evaluation of system water consumption based on comparisons of influent to and outflow from the City's wastewater treatment facility with production and customer meter data to determine percentages, volumes, and patterns in system consumption.
- Evaluation Treated Wastewater Irrigation System: Treated effluent from the City's wastewater treatment facility is used for irrigation at several city owned facilities and a limited number of private contractors. Evaluate water losses in this reuse system, including data validity, in a manner consistent with the AWWA methodology used for the potable water system.
- Recommendations: Review and develop recommended actions to reduce non-revenue water and improve data validity.
- Benchmarking: Participate in the AWWA's Utility Benchmarking program including completion of AWWA's Key Utility Measures for all contract years and the addition of more performance measures in subsequent years. Complete participation in the AWWA benchmarking program shall be completed by the final year of this contract.
